(XXVIIth YEAR.) THE (No. 1398.)

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1772.

WARSAW, March 14.

THE Diets of Lithuania were held with great tranquillity. The Nobility of that province have appointed Deputies to acknowledge to the King the legality of the acts of his election and coronation. To aſſure his Majeſty of their fidelity and ſubmiſſion, and how much they were rejoiced that it had pleaſed Heaven to deliver his ſacred perſon from the hands of the aſſaſſins, &c. the deputies of ſeveral palatinates and diſtricts are already arrived to execute this commiſſion.

According to the preliminaries for a peace, Moldavia and Walachia were to be reſtored to the Turks. The Tartars of the Crimea and their neighbours were to be declared a free people, exempt from all protection, and their fortreſſes not to be occupied by foreign troops. Turkey was to pay Ruſſia, for the expences of the war 80,000,000 dollars of Lyons; but Ruſſia will not accept theſe preliminaries, and hath ſent Lieutenant General Elmpt, with a body of 12,000 men, which, joined to that of General Romanius, who is near Slonim, Breze, and Pinſk, will reinforce the Ruſſian army conſiderably.

COPENHAGEN, April 4. The 30th of laſt month, Col. Keith, the Engliſh Miniſter, diſpatched a courier to his Court. Next day the couriers, ſent from our Cabinet, arrived here from London; and the following day Col. Keith received ſome diſpatches from his Court, by an expreſs, which he this day ſent back again to London.

Mr. Uldahl, Attorney General, who is charged with the defence of the Queen and of Count Struenſee, and who is for that purpoſe diſcharged from his oath, that he may be able to perform his duty the better, ſpoke, the 16th of laſt month, before the great Commiſſion, in favour of the accuſed. In his ſpeech he made uſe of theſe expreſſions: "In whatever light I view the affair, I find ſo much matter for reflection, concerning the manner in which the ——— has been treated, that I cannot entirely approve of that proceeding." He concluded with ſaying, "Being charged by the King's order with the defence of this cauſe, be perſuaded, Gentlemen, that I ſhall undertake nothing without a ſcrupulous examination. Neither partiality nor affection, but the laws and my conſcience alone, ſhall guide my pen, in my vindication of thoſe perſons whoſe defence I take in hand." Counſellor Beng is to plead in behalf of the Count de Brandt.

LONDON,

March 19. The Earl of Halifax's eſtates are, we hear, up at ſale for the payment of his debts, which amount to 160,000 l. Ninety-five thouſand pounds have been refuſed for one of theſe eſtates in the north, and the preciſion with which the noble teſtator takes care to provide for the ſatisfaction of his creditors does very great honour to his memory.

March 28. A great Perſonage, as well as his being his own Commander in Chief, is his own Miniſter; he has indeed an oſtenſible Premier, as he has an oſtenſible Secretary at War, but the one, like the other, is the inſtrument rather of his will than the adviſer of publick meaſures; and therefore all the proceedings of Government are now to be aſcribed either to the wiſdom or the benevolence of the ſovereign.

The Duke of Grafton is, we hear, continually cloſeted with the French Miniſtry at Verſailles; the buſineſs on which he has been diſpatched to France is, however, only gueſſed at.

March 31. The Speaker of the Houſe of Commons in Ireland is to be made a peer, and retire on a penſion.

April 2. The orders at the ſeveral dock-yards in this kingdom are, that the men be kept conſtantly at work for three months to come, and that every ſpeedy meaſure be taken for putting our navy upon the moſt reſpectable footing. This, it is ſaid, has cauſed ſome little converſation between Prince Maſſerano and Lord North, but each had addreſs enough to give perfect ſatisfaction to the other.

They write from Dublin, that on the 20th ult. when the Lord Lieutenant was returning to the Caſtle from the Houſe of Peers, his carriage was attacked by a mob, who inſulted him in the groſſeſt manner.

A ſmall French frigate has been obſerved hovering for ſome days paſt off the Iſle of Wight. None of the crew came on ſhore, and, when a boat made towards her, ſhe moved farther off.

We hear that Mr. Wilkes intends offering himſelf a candidate for the office of Lord Mayor for the enſuing year.

A correſpondent thinks, that the recal of Baron Dieden, at this juncture, wears an ominous appearance, eſpecially as no Miniſter is talked of to ſucceed him. The report of his going to Ruſſia, in the ſame character he holds here, our correſpondent thinks a pretext that may be very eaſily ſeen through, and therefore he does not heſitate to pronounce his Expectation of a ſpeedy Rupture with Denmark.

Extract of a letter from Woodbridge in Suffolk, March 20.

"It is impoſſible to deſcribe the diſtreſſes of the poor in this part of the country, for want of bread corn. It is not occaſioned by a bad harveſt, for we had a very good one, and well got in, and many farmers have now two years crops by them; but they will not bring it to market, ſaying they can make a greater advantage of it by ſending it to your city. But it is ſtrongly ſuſpected that, inſtead of coming thither, it goes to feed the French; and three days ago we were confirmed in our opinion, by ſome words let drop by a ſailor, belonging to a veſſel which lay in a ſmall creek within four miles of this town, to take in corn, that they were bound to Dunkirk. Upon which a number of people aſſembled, went to the place where the veſſel lay, ſeized all the wheat, which they divided among themſelves, and then ſet fire to the veſſel. Had they not been in ſuch a hurry, they might have met with a larger booty, as ſeveral waggons were on the road, loaded with corn, to put on board, and about a ſcore of fine fat ſheep. The maſter and crew made off, and have not ſince been heard of. The farmer lived in France ſome years, being obliged to leave his native country for ſeveral debts he had contracted, till his creditors agreed to give him time to pay them; he had followed this trade about two years.

"It is hoped that the legiſlature will take ſome ſteps to put a ſtop to theſe iniquitous practices, that our own poor may not ſtarve to ſupply our enemies. Whilſt I am writing this, I am informed, that ſeveral farmers round our neighbourhood have ſent their corn to Dunkirk for three years paſt, and that they have in return brandies, teas, &c."

The jubilee of the Jews, which is held every fifty years, in commemoration of their deliverance out of Egypt, was celebrated on Wedneſday by that people. This jubilee ſurpaſſed in ſhew any thing of the kind ever before ſeen in this kingdom, not only from their extraordinary increaſe in numbers, but from an emulation that ſeems to prevail amongſt the ſeveral prieſts of the reſpective tribes, who headed their different orders, riding upon jack aſſes elegantly capariſoned in their habiliments for this occaſion, which were not only truly antique, but ſuperlatively ſumptuous. They aſſembled at the tabernacle in Duke's Place by ſix o'clock in the morning, whence they ſet out, according to ancient cuſtom, on a pilgrimage to Highgate, the laity all walking bare footed and bare headed; and Signior Lioni, and ſeveral others of the moſt capital fingers that could be found in Europe, heightened the ſolemnity of this proceſſion, by ſinging ſeveral anthems adapted to the occaſion, and accompanied by a band of muſick hitherto unequalled for grandeur upon any occaſion. When arrived at Highgate, where a temporary ſynagogue was erected for the purpoſe, ſeveral living and other ſacrifices were offered for the expiation of their ſins, according to the judaical inſtitution. This over, they returned in the ſame manner to Duke's Place, where they held the feaſt of the Paſſover, and met the ſetting ſun with a religious jucundity.

Extract of a letter from an officer in the Rochford, Captain Hunt, dated Madraſs, Sept. 27, 1771, by the Stag.

"I embrace the opportunity of informing you, that we arrived here the 17th inſtant, having had an agreeable but rather a tedious paſſage of five months and 16 days, in the courſe of which we have in general enjoyed tolerable good health.

"We called at the Cape on the 6th of July, where we ſpent a fortnight very agreeably. There was at this place a French tranſport, with part of the regiment of Clare on board, deſtined for the iſland of Mauritius, and from her we learned, that a French army of Europeans, conſiſting of 7000 men, was there ready to ſtrike ſome capital ſtroke in India.

"The India Company are now at war with the King of Tanjotir, and have raiſed an army of 40,000 men againſt him, with which they have begun the ſiege of his capital, which contains himſelf, his treaſure, and his whole army. It will ſoon capitulate, as the place cannot long reſiſt ſuch a force."

Extract of a letter from Lurgan in Ireland, dated March 25.

"I find the rioters (near us) very quiet; I am of opinion they will ſoon ſubmit; the ſoldiery are in parties hunting the country every night, and each day bring in one or more priſoners. Yeſterday Mr. Johnſon, with a party, returning to this town, ſounded a horn, as they rode, frequently, at which many women, with joy in their countenances, ran out, ſuppoſing it to be their huſbands returning in triumph; but when they ſaw the troops, a groan was the conſequence; one man whoſe name is Reily, at the ſound of the horn, unkennelled himſelf, and ran to meet; as he thought, his quondam friends, but perceiving his miſtake fled; and Mr. Johnſon ſeeing him, ſaid, that fellow did not fly without a cauſe, therefore ordered a trooper to purſue him; the fellow took into a bog at that place called Clare, and the trooper, not being able to follow him on horſeback, got on foot, and purſued him to the ſide of a lake, where the fellow took to ſwimming; the trooper followed into the water to his middle, then ſnapped his piece at him, which flaſhed in the pan; however, Mr. Johnſon rode round and met Reily on the other ſide the lake, preſented his piſtol at him, and the fellow immediately fell upon his knees and begged his life. The brother of this Reily was committed to jail in the morning juſt before this fellow was taken; they have both turned King's evidences and impeached numbers. The country round this town is entirely thinned, unleſs of old men and young women. Another priſoner, one Duffy, a tailor, is this minute taken."

April 9. It is ſaid, that a tax of 50 s. per ann. is to be laid on all foreign livery ſervants in this kingdom.

It was Mr. Oliver that moved the Houſe of Commons to enquire into the caſe of the proprietors of the Antigallican private ſh p of war, printed copies of that caſe having been diſtributed. He was well ſupported by Mr. Sawbridge and others, but in vain. The nation's honour, the King's ſolemn promiſe, the hardſhips of the caſe, were all deſpiſed, and treated with contempt by the Treaſury Bench, and conſequently by the Houſe, who refuſed to enquire into that matter. This motion reflects much honour on Mr. Oliver.

Advice is ſaid to be received, that his Sardinian Majeſty's health being much impaired, he had declared his intention of ſurrendering the Crown to his eldeſt ſon, which it is reported will take place the beginning of July next.

At the Court of Aldermen held on Tueſday at Guildhall, the petition to the Houſe of Commons for opening the ports for the importation of corn was ordered to be preſented, after a long debate, by Mr. Sheriff Bull alone, the majority of the Court, it is ſaid, being of opinion, that Mr. Sheriff Wilkes is in Parliament for the county of Middleſex, and therefore was exempted from that duty. Mr. Wilkes inſiſted on his right and privilege, which was allowed by that Court after a full hearing.

Yeſterday, at one o'clock, Mr. Sheriff Bull, accompanied by the City Remembrancer, ſet out from Guildhall, to preſent the above petition to the Hon. Houſe of Commons.

In digging a proper foundation for the ſewer now repairing in Fleet-ſtreet, a braſs idol was found, much impaired, but it appears to have been an image of the Goddeſs Aſtarte. As the Tyrians had an extenſive commerce, they probably introduced their worſhip into Britain. The head ſeems to have been coiffed in ſome likeneſs to the preſent faſhion.

The following fact is almoſt too ſhocking for relation, and reflects infinite diſgrace on the perpetrators of the horrid deed. One Charles Guſton called on Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, and, under pretence of friendſhip, told her that her huſband was arreſted, and was at the Black Dog, a publick houſe in Shoreditch. The poor woman, anxious to ſee her huſband, ſtepped into a coach with Gunſton, but ſoon found herſelf in the fields inſtead of going to Shoreditch. She remonſtrated, but in vain; the coach ſtopped at Cope's madhouſe on Bethnal-green. She then declared ſhe would not enter the houſe, as it was not a publick houſe, and her huſband was not there. Gunſton then forced her out of the coach, and dragged her into the houſe with the moſt brutal violence. The amiable Mrs. Cope now appeared, called her mad bitch, and ordered her to be ſhaved, &c. They then proceeded to handcuff and chain her, and treated her with their accuſtomed ſeverity. During her reſidence in this infernal manſion, which was from Tueſday to Thurſday night, a Mrs. Field (wife of a hackney coachman) brought her water, adviſed her to patience, and wiped the trickling tear from her cheek. This Mrs. Field, it ſeems, is likewiſe in her perfect ſenſes, and has been confined for years. Mr. Juſtice Wilmot declared that he went to Cope's, where he found Mrs. Mills in a place which he ſhould not again chuſe to enter, as the ſtench of it was ſufficient to poiſon a thouſand people. It appears that a Mrs. Ubanck has likewiſe been a long time confined at Cope's, though in her perfect ſenſes. Sir John Fielding and the reſt of the magiſtrates obſerved, that the cruelties exerciſed in private mad-houſes exceeded the tortures of the inquiſition; and the writer of this account knows, that of all the mad-houſes Cope's bears the moſt infamous character. Mr. Kirby, keeper of Wood-ſtreet compter, and another perſon, appeared to bail Gunſton, Cope's infamous agent. Mr. Kirby's bail was accepted, the other refuſed, and Gunſton is to find another bondſman to take his trial for the aſſault.—Will no man of rank, ſpirit and ability, exert himſelf to procure an act for the inſpection and regulation of private mad-houſes?

We hear that a celebrated club, not an hundred miles from Pall Mall, who, on the cloſe of the laſt rebellion, ſupplied the Pretender for ſome years with an annuity of five thouſand pounds, but who lately ſtopped it on account of his diſſipated courſe of life, have, on a late letter from him, informing them of his intended marriage and futue intentions of œconomy, agreed to renew the ſubſcription, and have actually ſent him over 5000 l. with a promiſe of the like ſum annually.

It is expected the Attorney General of a ſiſter kingdom will be called to a very ſevere account, for making his report in favour of Lord Valentia, by which he was admitted to the Houſe of Lords of that kingdom. What particularly accounts for this prediſpoſi-tion in favour of my Lord was, that the Attorney General was lawyer to the Countess of Anglesea, at the same time he was her son's Judge.

We are well assured Lord Clive has a ferret that runs about his house, and is a great favourite, whose necklace (which he wears in common) is valued at 2500 l. Quere, Whether such a sum, so wantonly disposed of, carries the mark of all that humanity and fellow-feeling, which his Lordship insinuated he possessed in a late speech?

On Tuesday the House of Commons granted the following sums to his Majesty:

400,000 l. from the East India Company, to go towards the supply for the present year.

23,000 l. for repairing the British forts in Africa.

2,420 l. for repairing Cape Coast Castle.

4,000 l. to be applied as an encouragement for prosecuting discoveries towards the South Pole.

Notwithstanding the rumour spread of a peace between Russia and the Porte, there are more Russian men of war now equipping, and others ready to reinforce their squadron in the Mediterranean; and some transports with stores are lately gone thither.

April 10. A correspondent says, he applauds the judgment of those who were instrumental in having the bill for the better observation of the Lord's day printed for the use of the Members of the House of Commons, for no set of people in the kingdom stand more in need of it than they do.

April 11. Yesterday morning some important dispatches arrived at Lord Hillsborough's office from Lord Charles Greville Montague, Governor of South Carolina, which were brought by the Pallas, Captain Bayly, and afterwards sent to his Majesty.

It is reported, that matters are at length accommodated between our Court and that of Copenhagen; and that the Queen, who is released from her confinement, is visited twice a day by Col. Keith, the English Ambassador.

Orders are sent to the men of war that are to compose the squadron intended for the protection of the Newfoundland fishery, to be in the Downs by the first of next month.

April 13. The budget will be opened, and the affairs of America will come on in the Lower Assembly in the course of this week.

The principal insurgents, called Hearts of Steel, or Oak-Boys, have been apprehended and sent to Dublin.

It is said, upwards of 1000 families are preparing to set off for America, from Ireland, on account of the troubles in that kingdom.

It is thought the Parliament will not break up till the latter end of June.

A cause of great importance, relative to the property of an island, called Mill-Island, has for some days been heard by a committee of the Privy Council at the Treasury. This place lies near Philadelphia, in the river Delaware, and has been settled for many years, though it is alleged that the property has never been legally granted by the Crown; in consequence of which Lord Rochford has petitioned for and obtained it, as far as the King's right extends, and the trial now turns on these questions, Whether it has not been granted by his Majesty's predecessors? and, Whether, after the term of a certain possession, the Crown has a power to dispossess the inhabitants?

April 18. The generality of the people at Copenhagen entertain, at this present time, so favourable an opinion of their Queen, that government is rather timorous about proceeding to measures that may impeach her; and some principals concerned in the revolution begin to think their situation a little alarming. The King, it is said, is very much perplexed.

The hints thrown out in the news-papers relative to the destination of a British fleet, as if it was intended to act offensively against Denmark, are only the random conjecture of superficial politicians, and such as cannot possibly be credited by any man of understanding.

The Prince Ferdinand, Moor, from Pennsylvania, brings advice, that some disturbances had lately happened at New-York, in consequence of some late proceedings of the House of Assembly.

April 20. On Friday some dispatches were received at St. James's from the electorate of Hanover, said to contain some important intelligence, relative to the operations of the Prussian and imperial monarchs.

The following are the powers who, in all probability, will be involved in a war, should our Court take so rash a step as to send a fleet to the Baltic; France, and of course Spain and Naples, Prussia, Sweden, if not the Emperor and Empire, besides the principals.

The armament preparing against Denmark, is only intended to strengthen a negociation now on foot with that Court. The Court at St. James's insist, that no sentence shall be passed on her Danish Majesty, the evidence against her being only presumptive and very inconclusive. The articles said to be proved have been actually sent to London, and have been submitted to the opinions of the first lawyers, who, though consulted separately, have all declared, that the evidence brought is so far from bringing legal conviction, that it scarce amounts to a bare presumption of guilt, and they affirm, that they not only do not give credit to any of the facts as lawyers, but even find themselves obliged to disbelieve them as men.

This coincidence of opinion has raised such scruples in the Royal breast, that it is resolved not to permit the violence of a Danish faction to throw an unjust disgrace, by a sentence of guilt, upon a daughter of Great Britain. This resolution being taken, orders were immediately issued to prepare a squadron, and a courier was, in the mean time, dispatched to Sir Robert Keith, to insist upon a suspension of the sentence, to demand the person of the Queen, together with her fortune, and a settlement suitable to her dignity and family. The Danes being in no condition to cope with this country, it is supposed that the demands will be complied with, without any coercive measures.

It is said, that a certain great personage in the North was threatened with the torture, to induce her to sign the confession extorted from Struensee.

An intelligent correspondent informs us, that, after all, there is little ground for hope that the various accusations against a neighbouring Queen are not too well founded. In extenuation, however, of the Royal delinquent, our correspondent says, that it will be found, in the end, that she has been sacrificed to the ambitious designs of a political faction, who artfully laid the snare, into which youth and inexperience unhappily precipitated her.

It is affirmed, that the Prussian Minister has, within these few days, acquainted our Ministry, that in case an English squadron should appear in the Baltic, a Prussian army will march into Hanover.

ANNAPOLIS, JUNE 25.

TO THE PRINTERS.

A CERTAIN Writer who signs himself Bob Hint, has, in your Paper, undertaken to set forth, with wonderful Parade, the dreadful Calamities which have arisen to Baltimore-Town, from the Practice of Inoculation. Now I will be bold to say, that every Word which the said Bob Hint has advanced, is a d—n'd Lie, which, I flatter myself, is sufficient Proof to every Gentleman of an unprejudiced Understanding, without going in further Particulars.

For my own Part, I would, from an earnest Desire to promote the Happiness of all my Fellow Creatures in general, and the Community of Baltimore-Town in particular, propose, that a large and convenient Edifice be erected in the said Town, as an Hospital or Plague House, for the Use of the whole Continent, and that too forthwith, lest we be prevented by the Vigilance of a Sister Colony on the North. And should a hearty Disposition to execute so noble a Project discover itself, I doubt not, but that many of the leading patriotic Members in the Assembly, from their known and avowed Tenderness and Attachment to the Interest of a Place, which bids fair to raise us to an Equality at least with our most enterprizing Neighbours, would exert themselves to procure it an effectual parliamentary Sanction. I am well aware of the Treatment, which the Friends of Mankind have pretty invariably met with, in their Labours to serve them, from Ignorance, Perverseness, and Envy, which are ever ready to bark at rising Merit; but this shall not deter me from insisting, that it is expedient, upon the first Visit of the Plague to this Continent, an Event, which, from some late Alarms, there is but too reasonable Cause to fear, is not far off, a sufficient Quantity of Matter be immediately taken, and stored up, for the Use of said Plague House or Hospital; which will not only be a Means of saving the Lives of Thousands, but will bring into Baltimore-Town per Year twice as much ready Money as the annual Exportation of Wheat from thence, which Exportation cannot however be thereby any more diminished, than the Price of Provisions can be raised, for Reasons too clear and palpable to be expatiated upon. It is moreover an established Fact, that most Men ever retain an Affection for the Person or Place from which they have derived some signal Benefit; in which Case, Baltimore-Town cannot fail to be rooted in the Affections of far the greatest Part of the Continent: For every Man must foresee the prodigious Conflux of good Company, which will be drawn thither, by the Completion of my Scheme. And thus, what may at first Sight appear to a few a Volcano, teeming with Desolation, Famine and Death, will in the End prove a Mine of inexhaustible Riches. I have heard it declared by some weak and inconsiderate People, that the Small-Pox alone has already done more Mischief in Baltimore-Town, than all the poisonous Vapours heretofore suck'd up from Harrison's Marsh, and that the draining of that Repository, as noxious as it was deemed, whilst this sweeping Pestilence continues to ride in every Blast, is like a Physician's bestowing all his Attention upon the broken Shin of a Patient, who is devoured by a Cancer in his Face. But the Folly and Impertinence of this Remark will most clearly appear, when I declare it as my Opinion, that it would be the greatest Wisdom, even to select a Number of Apartments for the Purpose of making Experiments on the whole Tribe of contagious Diseases, such as Jail Fever, Flux, &c. &c. which will in the first Place be the likeliest Method of facilitating a thorough Knowledge of their specific Natures, as well as a Discovery of Medicines adapted to their respective Malignancies, and in the second, a most agreeable Amusement to those, whose philosophic Turn of Mind may lead them to attend these curious Enquiries of the Faculty into the Secrets of Nature; nor can Subjects for these useful Investigations ever be wanting, as long as those Gentlemen, who are Agents for that very liberal, patriotic, and humane Branch of Commerce, vulgarly called the Convict Consignments, shall push Business with their wonted Vigour. And it is to be hoped that their Ardor will not be in the least dampt, or their noble Courage cast down by any idle Checks which an impolitic Legislature may impose upon them. For a truly wise and virtuous Man will consider Things as they really are, not according to the Appearances they may assume; and however these Checks may be apparently fenced in and fortified with the strong Walls of Religion and Morality, they will bravely and generously burst through them all, to do good to a deluded headlong People, in spight of their Teeth; which is a Conduct that requires no great Degree of Casuistry, to sweeten it to the Spirits of Gentlemen of such pure and disinterested Intentions.

I rest assured that I have not only supported all my Allegations, but imposed eternal Silence on that frivolous Calumniator Bob Hint, by the Force of my irrefragable Arguments.
